Ridgeline Energy Services Inc. was formed to provide environmental and oil and gas production services to the Western Canadian Energy industry. However, Ridgeline's environmental services that are provided through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Bio-Synergy Resources Inc. (Bio-Synergy) have grown at a much faster rate than the production services. In the spring of 2009 it is anticipated that Bio-Synergy will be changing it's name to Ridgeline Environment Inc. The rapid growth in the environmental services area (See recently released 3rd Quarter financials to December 31, 2008) has lead to a re-organization of the company's system of financial control and work flow systems. These changes are anticipated to make the company more cost effective and more responsive to our customer needs.

Although under current market conditions the growth experience of the past year may be difficult to replicate management believes a more streamlined and cost effective organization will allow the company to maintain profitability and take advantage of growth opportunities.

Bio-Synergy has provided its clients with a wealth of knowledge and experience directed at providing environmental site assessments and economically viable waste management solutions. Commitment to research and development, and client-dedicated teams of project leaders, field technicians, and soil scientists keep Bio-Synergy clients at the forefront of changing or pending regulatory legislation and industry needs in regard to both environmental assessment and treatment options.
